

Saturday, January 9, 2010

A great game to get you talking with your family members...

Communication is extremely important in the family dynamic. Without it you get confusion, stress and many other negative things. Talking with children is a necessity, especially if you want a good relationship with them when they are older.

Around the Table Games has come up with a great way to get your family talking to each other. Here is what they have to say about their product:

"A collection of award winning portable conversation games designed to engage families and friends in fun and enlightening conversations.

Today's families, kids and teens are BUSY! Having products that allow families and youth to converse, have fun and connect through conversation wherever they may be is ESSENTIAL! Around the Table games can be played in the car, at the drive thru, at a soccer game, at a sleepover, on vacation, at a party...anyplace! See how the diverse questions can lead to surprising and often hilarious answers! No need to "schedule" game night! Just clip on your game and start talking!"

The wonderful people at Around the Table Games sent me the Family talk and the Buddy talk games. My sons were very eager to play and came up with some interesting and sometimes silly answers to the questions. For instance when Rowan was asked "If you could have named yourself, which name would you have chosen?" Rowan said "Elmo". These games are awesome for traveling. There are no small pieces to lose either! Perfect for everybody in the family aged 3 and up!

You can purchase your own games at <http://www.aroundthetablegames.com/products.php>